What are We Coming to?

It does truly look as if the wome were fast usurping positions that have heretofore been regarded as belonging solely to men. In conse-quence the men are driven to seek employment not thoroughly congenial to masculine taste. For instance, we find "a sober and steady man" advertising in a Chicago paper for a position to do housework. This may solve the servant queston and offer great opportunities for the men.

The difficulty in get-ting hold of them is that they are not yet due and holders are loath to let them go, but prospects look fav-orable and the bonds may be forthcoming, by paying a small premium for them, which is preferable to let ting them run to maturity, inasmuch as the money is in the treasury to redeem them with.

NEW TERMINUS SUG-GESTED.

Proposition to Penetrate the Great Pruit Region of Lower Michigan and Make Saugatuck a Great Coaling Port.

The article printed in this paper something like a month ago is receiv-ing much attention in the towns and cities in Michigan that were on the route of or contiguous to the old Coldwater railway project. The newspapers generally have been speaking favorably of the project and private individuals and firms have given the subject their attention and are prepared to give it a substantial endorsement when the proper parties take hold of the project with a deter-mination to push it along.

The following letter explains itself and suggests a new terminus for the road should it be built: ALLEGAN, MICH, Jan. 18, 1896. EDITOR TIMES:-Allow me to refer from congress in shape of appropria the harbor's improvement. There would be no railway opposition, as would be at Muskegon. The business to be gained by this route would be double that gained by the the Muskegon route. During 1895 Fennville shipped 406 car loads of peaches. Casco, Ganges, Sangatuck and Lake town townships shipped very nearly 7 million baskets, bringing into this section $650,000. This is one item alone, not mentioning any other farm item shipments, nor merchandise freight brought in.
